

Floormax Flooring AMERICA

With you every step of the way.

May 30, 2009

My company has been a client of Russell Bryant's and his firm since 2007 when, through a mutual client of ours, we were introduced.

Mr. Bryant's firm was involved in litigation concerning a defective hardwood floor installation in a high-end home and he asked that I render an opinion on the matter. In the course of my investigation and involvement with the case, I was impressed by the amount of research undertaken by Russell in order to understand the principles and properties of hardwoods and their installation. In fact, I would go so far as to say that the depth in which he delved into the matter would make him more knowledgeable today than most of my competitors whom have been in the flooring business for years.

It was with this firsthand knowledge of his dedication to the case, his client, and the law that I approached Russell to help with several legal issues Floormax was dealing with at the time. His intense focus to understand the issues relevant to our company's needs and provide good legal advice has been an invaluable resource to our business.

Over the course of the past two and a half years I have relied heavily on Russell and his firm. He has had a hand in the growth of our business by drafting contracts, providing litigation services and experience, and being readily available to offer good general legal counsel to Floormax. I have and continue to recommend his services to anyone who finds themselves in a legal predicament, whether civil or criminal.
